

ABSTRACT

5 A practice putting pad may be placed upon any convenient indoor or outdoor surface to practice putting skills. The pad has a putter toe line and a putter heel line which are spaced apart about the length of the head of the putter. A user aligns the face of the putter perpendicular with the toe and heel lines, and keeps the face of the putter perpendicular to these lines throughout the putting back and fore swings. The pad is about 26 inches long, five 10 and one half inches wide, and no more than one sixteenth of an inch thick. As such the practice putting pad may be rolled up and stored in a small cylindrical container.
